One of the goals of this society was to show the individuals that even if life is hard, they should be able to conquer all hardships. DIALOGUE CAFÉ PEACE BUILDING WORKSHOP AND DOCUMENTARY SCREENING

The Dialogue Café Lahore is basically a creative space bringing people together to interact and engage on issues that matter. People in Pakistan are usually afraid of discussing their issues openly because of the strong and reserved social structure that prevails. So the Dialogue Café Lahore basically provides people with a forum to talk on important topics which ranges from social taboos to international politics.

The topic for the session was peace building. In the session the students were asked about some personal biases they have had in their lives and how biases can turn into conflict. In the session students were asked to put forward an example of a major conflict present in the world. Keeping in mind the Kashmir issue, the causes of conflict, attitudes of the people and how their attitudes affected their behavior were talked about. The students were also shown a picture in which they had to guess the number of faces shown. Each student saw a different number of faces and in the end they realized that it was an optical illusion and the number of faces is not a fixed number at all. It would vary from person to person. This highlighted the fact that every other person has a different perspective and his or her perspective is worthy of respect. The session concluded with a documentary of one of the most influential teachers of peace studies, Johan Galtung. The gathering present at the library enjoyed the session and got to learn a lot about the importance of peace and perspective. The workshop was followed by a screening of the documentary, K2 and the Invisible Footmen, which was also attended in great numbers by students. We hope that the society continues to organize these amazing and informative sessions throughout the academic year.

SESSION WITH MR. MUSHARRAF ALI FAROOQI

On 1st March 2018, Lahore School Society of Literature hosted a renowned writer, translator, a storyteller and essayist Mr. Musharraf Ali Farooqi. Dastaan-e-Ameer Hamza, a name every Pakistani, or at least a person who's very rarely interested in the Urdu Literature has heard. Mr. Musharraf Ali Farooqi is a person who has brought the legend named Dastaan and famous Urdu-Farsi novel Hoshrubha to the contemporary world, in a language that is spoken by almost every person in our country. He translated these two Urdu-Farsi books into English. According to him, there had been English versions before too, but they had not done justice to the story, as his writing has. The session started with Mr. Farooqi telling us what Dastaangoi/Storytelling is. According to him, storytelling has been a part of the Arabic culture for long. It has been used for many purposes such as battle training and treating the sick. He emphasized the point that after the creation of Pakistan there was a decline in the literary and cultural side of education as most of the people after the partition were forced to look for means that would help them subsist in the world, and they thought that art and literature aren't part of them. Thus, today the "elite", of Pakistan, he said had distanced themselves from the regional legends and are focused on the English literature and related stories.

He went on to criticize it as he said that the people of this country reject the regional legends for being myths while at the same time accept their western counterparts with pride. He pointed out the fact that today when he visits underprivileged schools, more students there know about Dastaan than the people in the well-established schools of the city. He further pointed out the problem of cultural disconnect present in today's youth, which seems sadly true. Then, answering a question regarding the effects of the story on the storytellers, he gave us the examples of Mir Babar Ali, who had developed a loud voice for narration, which was uncomfortable, but it had been developed because he was the narrator of Bazaars. He also talked about the setting of a Dastaangoi event, where he told us people sat on the floor, the number of attendees would be around 200, the narrator would never use mic as he thought mics cause a disconnection between the audience and the narrator. He also told us that he is currently working on a project with some schools, such as Lahore Grammar School, where he is teaching them about Dastaangoi and different stories. He wanted what he called, 'young scholars' to help him in achieving his aim, which is to end the aforementioned cultural disconnect. It truly is a noble cause for the betterment of the society, and we wish him the best of luck.

SESSION WITH MR. RIZWAN AKHTAR

Lahore School's Society for Literature organized a speaker session with the poet, Mr. Rizwan Akhtar. Mr. Rizwan Akhtar recently published his poetry collection titled "Lahore I am coming". His poems carve out the intricate beauty of Lahore. They further take a sojourn into our inner world and explore the many conflicts which fraught us. During the session he spoke about his book and elucidated the process of writing poetry. The session was a great opportunity for budding poets to understand the excruciating (and often intimidating) writing process. Students who are taking creative writing course greatly benefited from his insights. The last half of the session was dedicated to questions. This was also a great opportunity for the students that were looking for feedback.

Founded in 2016, and named after its founder's pet Todd, who was stolen from outside his home in 2010, this society is for the unattended/stray animals in Lahore. They are known for their campaign 'Free a stray, everyday'. Furthermore, they spread awareness regarding the rights of animals, and their rightful treatment. The event started with the statistics of how more than 80 animals have been saved by TWS, in a short span of not more than a year and a half. Then, they showed us how TWS has come from nowhere to have two no-kill foster homes for these strays, one in Cavalry and the new one on Burki Road. They further showed us the sad reality of the brutalities committed by people against these innocent animals, and how they're ignored, like starving dogs, and so many other examples of it. However, they spread awareness of how, today if someone sees a stray dog suffering, or needs to be taken care of, should be helped.

The conference was held to discuss the topic; Pak-Afghan Relations and the Role of US in the Region. Journalist Ahmed Rashid started off his speech by discussing how initially the Taliban group was formed and how they were mobilized when the Soviets waged war in their home country. Moreover, he talked about the mistakes that Pakistan had made which led to the rise of these terrorist groups in this region making it difficult to break their strong network.

Furthermore, he also pondered upon the role that US had played in all this. He believes that this group would never have achieved its dramatic rise to power without Saudi Arabia and the Gulf States who offered training and initial financial support. The Taliban were also said to be endorsed by the US. Moreover, he also emphasized on the importance of negotiations and alliances of countries like Iran, China, Pakistan and India, which he regarded important for the peace building process in this region. Towards the end of the event, a 45-minute discussion session was held in which the guest of honor answered the questions of students.
